

Courses and training for employees in the water sector -design, development & delivery-

World Water Academy (SWO) designs, develops and delivers courses and training programmes for water professionals on various levels and various topics. The courses and trainings are tailored to a specific target group, based on the demands of the water sector: level, experiences and skills. The courses (programme, learning objectives and course materials) are tailored to the target group. Cultural awareness is taken into account as well.

World Water Academy offers training programmes for all water related issues:

- drinking water (including production and distribution)
- sewerage and urban water management
- waste water treatment
- water management and Flood safety
- didactical topics for water professionals

World Water Academy uses a project-based approach for the development and delivery of a singular tailored course, called the 3D phase model (see figure below). The model shows three phases needed for developing and organizing a tailored course. The first delivery is usually part of the development phase. After the first delivery, the course is updated based on the evaluation and experiences of trainers and participants. Finally the result is a course, ready for reproduction.

Courses and training for employees in the water sector -design, development & delivery-

The developed course products include:

- training needs assessment to tailor the course in the context;
- programme (topics, target group, learning objectives, corresponding teaching methods & schedules);
- supporting materials for the delivery, like lesson materials, presentations, readers and/or assessments

Professional trainers

World Water Academy contracts professionals with experience in a certain topic to be trainer in a course. These motivated professionals are trained to develop their didactical skills. We have a large pool of professional trainers who can be contracted to deliver trainings.

Course delivery and organization

We can also assist the local partner with the organization of the course, like arranging the logistics, venues, excursions and study trip.

After the registration of a participant on a course, we provide the necessary information to the participant, like schedules and an invitation for the first session. During the delivery of the course, we provide the course schedules and materials.

The final exams or tests are organized, graded and managed by World Water Academy. The participants receive a certificate for following the course and/or pass the exam.
